INVESTMENT OBJECTIVE AND STRATEGIES

Franklin Bissett Money Market Fund (the “Fund”) seeks high current income, liquidity and capital preservation by investing primarily in bankers’ acceptances, high-quality and short-term money market instruments and issues from Canadian federal or provincial governments and government agencies. The Fund has no minimum requirement for government securities and may invest up to 100% in non-government securities. The Fund has stringent issuer diversification requirements.

The Fund invests in money market securities, floating rate notes and securities maturing in one year or less. The Fund maintains a dollar-weighted average term to maturity of 90 days or less.

RISK

The risks of investing in the Fund remain as stated in the prospectus. The Fund is suitable for investors seeking a Canadian money market fund who have a low risk tolerance and a short-term investment time frame.

Due to the Fund’s fixed income focus, interest rate risk and reinvestment risk, the risks that proceeds could be reinvested at a lower interest rate, are primary, but credit risk is also a factor.

RESULTS OF OPERATIONS

As at December 31, 2017, total net asset value of the Fund was $203.3 million, a decrease of 4.9% from December 31, 2016. This was primarily driven by $11.9 million in net redemptions and partially offset by an increase of $1.6 million in net assets from operations.

During the past year, the Fund’s Series A units generated total returns of 0.3%. The performance of the Fund’s other series is similar to that of its Series A units, except for differences in expense structure. For the return of the Fund’s other series (if applicable), please refer to the “Past Performance” section.

Financial markets experienced historically low volatility in 2017 as risk assets climbed steadily. With reduced inflation expectations and a relatively dovish tone from the Bank of Canada (BOC), Canadian treasury-bill rates began the year trading in a fairly narrow range. This changed in June as the BOC changed its tone, stating that the 50 basis points (bps) of cuts that occurred in 2014 had accomplished the central bank’s goals. Markets understood this to mean that a rate hike was likely at the next meeting on July 12, 2017, and quickly priced in an increase. After trading in a fairly contained range since the beginning of the year, one-year T-bill yields backed up to 97 bps on June 30, 2017, from 66 bps.

The BOC surprised the market with a second rate hike at its September meeting, bringing the overnight target to 1.00%. This caused the one-year T-bill yield to trade up to 1.45%, pricing in the more aggressive BOC action. The rate then dropped as Canadian economic data began to come in under expectations, until outsized job growth and a US Federal Reserve (Fed) rate hike pushed the one-year T-bill rate to end the year at 1.53%

Over the first part of the year, Canadian corporate paper outperformed T-bills, as corporate spreads compressed when rates rose. Until the selloff in rates, the spread of three-month bankers’ acceptances (BAs) over three-month T-bills traded in a range of 26–28 bps. By the end of June, the spread had tightened to 24 bps, as BAs outperformed. However, by year end, the spread had widened to 40 bps. One-year BAs followed a similar pattern, with spreads relatively stable at the beginning of the year trading in a range of 34–38 bps, which compressed to 29 bps by the end of June and then ended the year at 34 bps. Finally, provincial yields traded similarly to BAs, outperforming T-bills on the backup in rates and then underperforming towards year end. The portfolio manager continued to invest in corporate and provincial issues when they were deemed attractive, and maintained a relatively high corporate exposure through the period.

The Fund invests in high-quality, short-term paper with a minimum Dominion Bond Rating Service rating of R1-low and short-term corporate bonds (less than 365 days to maturity) with investment-grade ratings, as well as in government and corporate floating rate notes. The Fund generally maintains an average term of 70–90 days and does not employ an active interest rate anticipation strategy. At period end, the average term to maturity was approximately 77 days.

Average net assets of the series of the Fund that bear expenses have remained relatively flat for the year ended December 31, 2017, resulting in expenses remaining relatively unchanged during the period. Income received from investments held, increased due to the results of the Fund’s investment activities, including, but not limited to, those previously discussed for the period in review.

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS

Global economic growth has been improving even if at only a moderate rate. This has prompted central banks to either begin to remove some of their monetary stimulus, or at least plan to do so. After an increase in overnight lending rates by 50 basis points in 2017, markets have priced in a further four hikes by the BOC in 2018. South of the border, the Fed raised rates three times in 2017 and is priced for two more increases in 2018, in addition to reducing its holdings that had been initiated from its past quantitative-easing measures.

While markets are currently tolerant of risk, the withdrawal of monetary stimulus could shake investor confidence if done too rapidly. After two outsized employment reports in Canada, markets are pricing in more monetary tightening than the portfolio manager believes is warranted. At year-end, the market had fully priced in a January 17 increase in the BOC's overnight rate for January, an expectation that was shared by the portfolio manager. However, the portfolio manager believes the message accompanying such a rate increase will portray a dovish tone, outlining the significant geopolitical risks investors face today.

NOTES TO FINANCIAL HIGHLIGHTS

Net Assets per Unit:

- (1) This information is derived from the Fund's audited annual financial statements. In the period a fund or series is established, the financial information is provided from the date of inception to the end of the period. In cases where the net assets per unit presented in the financial statements differ from the net asset value calculated for Fund pricing purposes, an explanation of these differences can be found in the notes to the financial statements.
- (2) Net assets and distributions are based on the actual number of units outstanding at the relevant time. The increase/decrease in net assets from operations is based on the weighted average number of units outstanding over the fiscal period. This table is not intended to be a reconciliation of opening and closing net assets per unit.
- (3) Distributions were paid in cash or reinvested in additional units of the Fund or both, and exclude distributions of management fee reductions to unitholders.

Ratios and Supplemental Data:

- (1) This information is provided as at the period-end of the year shown.
- (2) Management expense ratio is based on total expenses for the stated period and is expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net asset value during the period.
